

Why Appreciating Your Staff Makes Business Sense?

In every industry sector, employees are stressed. Completing the same amount of work, with fewer team members, for the equivalent pay is the formula for stress, burnout and resentment. Some studies have shown that offices staffs are doing 30% more work than they were doing in 2007, for the same pay! Many business leaders know their team members are stressed, but they don't know what to do to encourage them, as monetary and tangible rewards are always limited. The most cost-effective way out in enhancing staff engagement and morale is by cultivating a culture of appreciation. Yet, how?
