

Seminar on Internal Consulting

Co-organized with Hong Yip People Development Academy and HKPMA (3 CPD Units)

Do you need to:

- build relationships with people in your organization;
- understand their operational needs and wants;
- present proposed solutions;
- influence them and build their ownership and commitment to take action?

If you do, then you are playing internal consulting roles within your organization. If you wish to have greater impact and make better use of your specialist or technical knowledge in performing the above roles, then this after-work seminar would be for you.

If you are a human resources specialist, this seminar will boost your HR consulting skills and help you become more effective as an HR consultant and business partner. Learn how to get line managers to take ownership of the initiatives driven traditionally by a central human resources function. This is an adjunct to traditional HR training and HR courses.

Facilitator: Prof. Alfred Ho, CMC, FITP, FIMC, FIIM

Alfred is the Deputy Chairman of ITP, a veteran management consultant, with over thirty years of experience ranging from line operation, change management, management training, to OD. He specializes in competency assessment and development, corporate governance, and creativity & innovation development.

In his capacity as the founding and one of the longest serving Senior Advisers of the Management Development Centre of Hong Kong, the legendary R&D unit in management T&D under the Vocational Training Council he has helped hundreds of organizations, public to private, local SMEs to multinationals. He was a founder of the Institute of Management Consultants Hong Kong (IMCHK) and played an instrumental role in helping to set up the first IMC in the Mainland. He led the Hong Kong and Tsinghua University team in identifying and specifying the competencies of management consultants in the two places – Hong Kong and Mainland China. In 2002 he designed and led the first competency-based management consultant development workshop in the Mainland at Fudan University.
